

“Free School Under the Bridge” is now a part of the NDDP program

Under the aegis of NDDP, Newgen CSR has adopted the "Free School: Under the Bridge", adding another feather to its cap. The school imparts knowledge to 400 students (divided in two batches- one for boys and another for girls) of a nearby locality come for remedial classes under the Yamuna Bank metro bridge.

The school was founded by Mr. Rajesh Kumar who is a college dropout and runs his own general store at Shakarpur. The school has basic infrastructure, mats for students, few plastic and wooden chairs for the teachers and a couple of steel trunk boxes for storing attendance registers and school records. And, the black-painted boundary wall serves as a blackboard.

Newgen Digital Discovery Paathshala (NDDP) empowers students through Digital Education, the idea that stems from the vision of Newgen's Managing Director, Mr. Diwakar Nigam. With the same motive, we have adopted this school to transform the remedial classes into fun-learning activities, empowering the unprivileged students and providing them with facilities which otherwise they do not have access to.

At the school, we help students to better understand classroom topics and enhance their digital knowledge. The target group here varies from students of class 6th to 12th. Thus, we as a team, impart knowledge on general topics such as health and hygiene, common ailments and others.

We as Newgenites do not believe in doing branding through CSR but, we want to be a brand that has transformed students' life by providing them digital knowledge.
