

NDDP Winter Camp 2019

During the winter break, Newgen's CSR team organized a camp for the VIII standard students of Govt. Girl's Senior Secondary School, Tekhand. The aim of the camp was to help the students become proficient in using iPads.

The camp started with a batch of 27 students. With new enrollments, the batch size increased to 61. In order to give students individual attention, they were called section-wise and each section was assigned a day. The students were soon able to operate iPads and were able to search for information, based on given keywords.

Post the sessions, the students were assessed and marked against a set of parameters to measure the outcome of the sessions. The results, around 93% of the students were comfortable in operating various features of iPad. And, the other 7% faced some challenge but were able to perform all the basic operations.

The overall success rate of the winter camp was about 93%, leading to an increase in the digital literacy rate by 19% approximately. The students were enthusiastic to learn as it was a new experience for them. We plan to organize more of such camps to empower students with digital literacy, making them more proficient and confident in using iPads.
